Safety and efficiency go hand-in-hand

The carbon tax, movements in the dollar, interest rate uncertainty and a major share market correction are all playing their part to make life difficult for manufacturers. Of course, plant owners and operators can't control these issues and must look beyond them to keep costs down and lift productivity.

Here technology must play a critical role, as it always does, not only in improving performance, but also in making the workplace safer. Safety and workplace performance go hand in hand.

Two exhibitions, The Safety Show Sydney and Sydney Materials Handling, to be held in October provide an ideal opportunity for owners and operators to catch up with the latest technology.

Both exhibitions will be co-located and held concurrently on October 25-27 at the Sydney Showground, Sydney Olympic Park, along with BULKEX, the annual bulk handling exhibition.

The Safety Show Sydney will cover an enormous range of products and services, including personal protective equipment; health and safety management software; risk management tools; safety signage; security and communication equipment; health and safety consultants; insurance products; medical and rehabilitation services; first aid; ergonomics and office safety; vehicle safety; hygiene services and equipment; and legislation advisory organisations.

Likewise, Sydney Materials Handling is a must attend for all warehouse and operations managers, logistics and procurement managers, site managers, maintenance managers, production managers, forklift operators, foreman, plant managers, union representatives and dispatch managers.
